

Transparency, Reproducibility, and Credibility

September 10, 2019 at the World Bank in Washington, DC

Tentative Program

Time	Session	Speakers/Participants/Topic
9:30 – 9:45am	Opening Remarks	Florence Kondylis (World Bank)
9:45 – 11:45pm	Expo Session: Lightning talks by organizers on current methods and innovations	3ie (International Initiative for Impact Evaluations): Push Button Replication project; Experiences from the implementation of a Transparency Policy; or Results from a pilot on open qualitative data BITSS (Berkeley Initiative for Transparency in the Social Sciences): The ACRE Project: Continuing education, curriculum development, and building infrastructure for verification reporting and cataloguing to support roll-out of new AEA Data & Code Availability Policy DIME Analytix: Capacity building for research quality: how DIME supports skill-building, IT capacity, and resource development for staff from RAs to PIs IPA (Innovations for Poverty Action): Our work conducting in-house curations and how trends have shifted our workflow (e.g. the use of our IRB to influence curation work, impacts of GDPR on anonymization, and how PIs are impacted) J-PAL (Abdul Latif Jameel Poverty Action Lab): Trends from the AEA registry, lessons from our pre-publication replication project, or discussion of human subjects confidentiality and data publication
12:00 – 1:00pm	Keynote Luncheon (public)	Ted Miguel (Berkeley/BITSS) Topic: Frontiers in Pre-Registration in Economics
1:00–2:00pm	Panel 1: What do we mean by reproducibility?	Moderator: Florence Kondylis (World Bank) Panelists: Lorena Barba (George Washington University), Owen Ozier (World Bank), Thu-Mai Lewis Christian (Odum Institute)
2:00–2:15pm	Coffee
2:15–3:15pm	Panel 2: Balancing open data and privacy	Moderator: Olivier Dupirez (World Bank) Panelists: Simson Garfinkel (US Census Bureau), Mercè Crosas (Harvard/Dataverse), Anja Sautmann (JPAL)
3:15–3:30pm	Coffee
3:30–4:30pm	Panel 3: Practical steps to credibility and transparency in research	Moderator: Garret Christensen (US Census Bureau) Panelists: Lars Vilhuber (Cornell/AEA/US Census Bureau), Marie Gaarder (3ie), Lupe Bedoya (World Bank)
4:30pm	Closing Remarks	To be confirmed